The UK Competition and Markets Authority (CMA) approved Alpha Wireless customer Cellnex to acquire 6,000 cell sites from CK Hutchison. Cellnex sees the move as strengthening its position as a key pan-European operator and improving and extending coverage, including 5G. To approve the acquisition, regulators required Cellnex to divest itself of about 1,000 sites to avoid a duopoly – two companies dominating the market. Read the article: <https://bit.ly/3uJR8Da> ✓
